SHOT HIS WIFE

Drink Was the Demon Which Ruiued John Lynch.

Until a few months ago, John Lynch lived happily with his wife and three children, the eldest II and the youngest 3 years old. His sister Katie also lived with the family, and through Lynch,s industry they were comfortable and managed to save a little money. Of late the wife took to drink, and not withstanding the constant entreaties of her husband and sister-in-law. presisted in inebriety.

The children were neglected, and the house went to rack and ruin. This state of affairs disheartened the industrious cobbler and he, too, took to drink to drown his sorrow. The sister then undertook the double task of reforming both husband and wife, but her efforts were in vain.

Lynch's business dwindled away, When the neighbors were many times compelled to interfere. On Friday night Mrs. Lynch became intoxicated. The sister begged her to stop drinking but she continued until she became insensible. Then she was put to bed. When she awoke yesterday morning the sister again attempted to reason with her, but she became furious and final- for sale by the following merchants in vain and was obliged to give it up. Mrs. Lynch continued to drink all day, and in the afternoon the husband also became intoxicated. About 4 o'clock they began hostilities. Mrs. Lynch had pos-session of the bank book and declared her intention of drawing all the money and having a good time with it. Although he was under the influence of liquor, Lynch protested against such a course and a war of words ensued
